Women and men overjoyed with overseas makeovers...

A makeover used to mean splurging on a new pair of shoes. Now, women are more likely to make a splash with a new pair of breasts. The fast growing trend in overseas medical tourism has made this dream a reality for thousands of men and women.

Rebecca, (featured above) director of Restored Beauty Getaways said she has experienced a boom from couples now wanting to buy each other cosmetic surgery treatments combined with a holiday to Thailand.

"Some people even have a 2007 list of resolutions - to look Younger, Slimmer and Healthier".

A new year is when people generally plan to look better for the year ahead and for many this includes improving their appearance with cosmetic procedures, with body reshaping always number one on their wish list. Very few men or women are happy with their body shape. Over the holiday season there is a tendency to over-indulge in food and alcohol, resulting in extra kilograms being added to an already troubled area. Liposuction is a very popular choice and comes with emerging benefits.

Topping the list of the most surgical make-over procedure Rebecca said would have to be Breast Augmentation. She said breast implants are on the increase because of the affordability and quality overseas at the International private hospitals. Business for Restored Beauty Getaways is up 50% since last year and it's expected to get busier over the coming weeks. Sending on average of 25-30 patients to Thailand each month for an array of cosmetic procedures, many are couples who have chosen to either have surgery together or provide support for their loved one. Rebecca said many people are surprised at how much it costs and how affordable it is to go overseas to have surgery, as well as a 5 star holiday.

Another popular trend these days is for couples to buy each other procedures in the lead up to their wedding day.

After reading an article on Restored Beauty Getaways in Cosmopolitan Bride (Spring/Summer Edition 2006) a couple from Kalgoorlie, Western Australia flew to Bangkok (Pattaya) with the help of Restored Beauty Getaways. The bride to be had breast enlargement and the groom to be had liposuction to his abdomen all in preparation to "look" and "feel" good on the most important day of their lives. Another engaged couple and a girlfriend from Perth recently flew to Bangkok where the girls had breast enlargements and rhinoplasty and the groom to be had laser teeth whitening. After 4 days in Bangkok they flew to Phuket to enjoy the rest of their recovery time on the beach sipping cocktails and for the girls - finally wearing bikinis they could finally fit!
